The Henley Centre for Coaching is a research and coach training centre at Henley Business School. The Centre is recognised as a world leader for coach training and research, having trained over 2,500 coaches over the past decade. The Centre provides professional coach training with a Professional Certificate in Coaching and an MSc, which are delivered in the UK across Europe and in the Middle East and Africa. Henley’s team is actively engaged in research, contributing to journals, books and best practice publications.

Current research projects include neuroscience and coaching, coach identity and coach development, coaching competences, supervision and coaching ethics. The Centre also provides continuous professional development and supervision for coaches across the world. You can join the Henley Centre for Coaching and access our research, resources, supervision and bi-monthly webinars.

To find out more about Henley’s coaching activities in the UK and Europe visit: henley.ac.uk/coachingcentre

The EMCC exists to develop, promote and set the expectation of best practice in mentoring, coaching and supervision across Europe and beyond, for the benefit of society. EMCC International is a council made up of countries providing coaching and mentoring membership in affiliated countries. Direct membership is available globally where an affiliation does not exist. The EMCC was founded in 1992 by David Clutterbuck, David Megginson, Bob Garvey, Kim Langridge, Julie Hay, Eric Parsloe and Sir John Whitmore.

As of 2018, it has affiliations in 25 countries: Belgium, Cyprus, Croatia, Czech Republic, Denmark, Finland, France, Germany, Greece, Hungary, Ireland, Italy, Luxembourg, Morocco, the Netherlands, Norway, Poland, Romania, Spain, Sweden, Switzerland, Serbia, Turkey, Ukraine and the United Kingdom. The EMCC provides course accreditation, alongside individual accreditation for coaches, mentors and supervisors.

Details can be found at: emccouncil.org/eu/en/accreditation
Membership is open to everyone.

The European Coaching and Mentoring Research Consortium project involved a collaboration with over 50 academics and practitioners, and over 100 professional bodies across Europe.
Introduction

This report provides an overview of the results from the three Baltic States: Latvia, Lithuania and Estonia, and compares these with the results from UK and Europe.

Research method

The aim of the research project was to extend beyond traditional institutional networks and the main European languages (English, French, German and Spanish), to provide a more inclusive research study, recognising the equal value of all European countries, languages and cultures, and of the different professional bodies and institutions.

The research questions were designed by the researchers in collaboration with the EMCC, and were adapted during the development phase. For each country, a research partner or team was identified and a National Research Lead was consulted on whether the survey should be translated, and which language(s) should be used. The National Research Leads led the translation process, which involved initial translation and an independent review.

The survey was launched on 1 March 2017 in 31 languages, ranging from English, Spanish, French and German, to Greek, Catalan and Serbian.

The survey was publicised through established coaching federations and management bodies, as well as online through social media interest groups. In total, approximately 100 organisations committed to sharing the research link with their members or to publishing details of the research on their website.

Participants took, on average, 25 minutes to complete the questionnaire.
The development of coaching in the Baltic States

Over the last decade, coaching has matured considerably in the Baltic States, with more companies interested in the potential of coaching as a tool to help their employees. There has been a major expansion of coaching in the area of executive education and development. Coaching has become a standard feature in areas such as:

- Modular leadership development programmes
- Graduate development programmes, coupled with mentoring
- Middle management development

The use of internal coaches is also featuring more, with larger organisations developing their own internal coaching panels and supplementing these with external coaches where necessary. This appears to be driven by a desire to embed a coaching culture and style of management into organisations.

In spite of this growth, membership of the main professional body – the International Coach Federation (ICF) – remains relatively low.

Membership of the ICF in each country is as follows:

- Latvia – 26 members
- Lithuania – 22 members
- Estonia – 33 members

Current hot topics in Baltic coaching practice include:

- Coaching as a leadership style and coaching for executives
- Coaching as a tool to create organisational culture
- Life coaching and its demystification
- Coaching as a profession

The main providers of coach education in Lithuania are: Profesionalu Aliansas, L-Con-Global and the Baltic Coaching Center. A number of universities are now starting to teach coaching skills, mainly as part of other courses, including Mykolas Romeris University and Vilnius University.
